

Call Before You Dig

- planting a tree
- putting up a party tent
- creating a foundation for a deck
- hosting a children's gathering with super-sized inflatables

Whether you are using a shovel, power auger or a backhoe, you could hit buried power, gas or cable lines when digging in your yard. Hitting any of these lines could seriously injure or even kill you. What looks like a small nick could result in a major health or fire hazard to the surrounding neighbourhood. The good news is that many of your neighbours call for an underground cable locate before they dig up their yard. You can too!

Our locate service is free. That's a pretty good deal when you consider that a fine for digging up and damaging an underground cable can run into thousands of dollars.

So, as you plan this year's backyard project, don't forget the step that can save you lots of headaches:

Call before you dig!
